VSPT Wine Group enters the Dow Jones Sustainability Index Chile 2017 for the first time

Santiago, September 25th 2017. The second-largest wine exporting group in Chile and leader in fine wine sales in the domestic market was selected among 26 leading companies in Chile in terms of sustainability. The group is comprised of 9 wineries; San Pedro, Tarapacá, Leyda, Santa Helena, Misiones de Rengo, Viñamar and Casa Rivas in Chile, as well as La Celia and Tamarí in Argentina, all of them highly committed to sustainable practices since 2008.

VSPT Wine Group has featured in the index for the first time within the Food, Beverages & Tobacco category, which came into effect from Monday 18th September 2017.

Each year the international list is spearheaded by the Santiago Stock Exchange, S&P Dow Jones Indices (S&P DJI) –the world’s leading global index provider– and RobecoSam, an investment specialist focused exclusively on sustainability investment. The method used is “best-in-class”, those which exceed the Santiago Stock Exchange IGPA (General Share Price Index) by 40%, based on environmental, social and long-term management factors.

Being included in the most prestigious international sustainability index is a great honor for VSPT Wine Group. In the past ten years, we have developed innovative initiatives and projects which not only allow us to continue growing sustainably, but also allow us to build a solid, committed and proud organization, adding value to our business and brands”, says Bárbara Wolff, Corporate Affairs and Innovation Manager for VSPT Wine Group.
